

A Shift in the American Mind

Guest post by Geoffrey Pike.

I have detected a shift in the American mind and it is a good thing. I see more and more people awakening to the fact that government is not there to look after people. I see more people realizing that these ongoing wars are ridiculous, unnecessary, and quite harmful. I see more people realizing that government is not the answer to their problems.

For young Ron Paul supporters, they have no idea just how much this country has changed in the last 5 years. Libertarianism was barely on the map. There was no such thing as a libertarian giving a speech to thousands of people in an audience.

Read the full thing »