

A Story of Charity

What sort of voluntaryists would we be if we didn't show the world that people can take care of each other without coercivist institutions? May we all be a little more like this young fella: