

Chimera

Nobody asked but ...

It was ineffective back when the scale was imaginable. I soon learned that you cannot recover computer storage by removing one file at a time. There are a number of reasons, but the top reason, I suppose, is that undoing stuff manually that was done automatically, at the speed of light, has the tedium potential of cutting grass with nail clippers. The cost effectiveness is a chimera.

So it seems is POTUS' approach to economics. He is swatting at flies, here and there ... and the economy is a delicate tracery of crystalline self-organizing phenomena.

What will be the outcomes of putting tariffs on solar energy collectors and washing machines, other than another wink and nudge for cronyism?
