

Collectives

Nobody asked but ...

I belong to many collectives, voluntary collectives. Only voluntary collectives escape the label of socialism.

I am a member of the collective of those who love our farm, those who love the land of Kentucky, those who love the land of the US, those who love North America, those who love the Americas, those who love the Western Hemisphere, those who love the World, those who love the Solar System, the Milky Way, the Universe, the Universes.

I am by natural law a voluntaryist among these groups.

I despise any collective that has relied on an unnatural fiction such that any particular individual must belong.

— Kilgore Forelle