

Connect to Correct

Connect to Correct

Time-out...Using rejection as a form of punishment; Isolating a child; Subjecting a child to the silent treatment when they don't meet our need for obedience; Demanding an apology from the child

Time-in...Using communication as a form of discipline; Connecting with a child; Meeting a child's need being communicated by the behavior; Equipping the child with coping skills for the future

Children need love, compassion, and understanding most when they deserve it least. They learn to listen when they are heard. They learn respect by being respected. And they learn cooperation through guidance, encouragement, and communication.

~L.R. Knost

www.littleheartsbooks.com

Click to enlarge.