

It Takes Two to Tango

Nobody asked but ...

It takes two for a lie to live; someone to fashion the lie and at least one other to give the lie credence. It takes two to compromise, and it takes two to fail to compromise. It takes two to agree and, therefore, it takes two voluntaryists to reach a voluntary agreement. Being a voluntaryist is an individual choice, but it takes others to make a voluntaryist life beyond being a good-minded hermit on a hillside far from the madding crowd.
