

On Global Warming

I don't care if human beings are causing global warming or not. Individuals with an illegitimately acquired and violently maintained monopoly on the use of force, ie. the state, can't fix it by threatening everyone with more violence for failing to adhere to their demands. Only free, enterprising, and innovative individuals can solve such a problem, assuming that it can be solved by human beings at all. And that's today's two cents.

Skyler.
