

On Illegal Immigration

Due to the lack of factual evidence on the applicability of state laws to people, there is no such thing as illegal immigration. It simply doesn't exist. By definition, immigration by people can only be illegal if there is factual evidence that the state immigration laws they are allegedly violating apply. In reality, there is no such factual evidence. So in reality, illegal immigration is a fantasy. Doesn't exist as anything more than people's opinions and arguments. QED. Do you think it does? Present your factual evidence and let it be challenged. Good luck. And that's today's two cents.

Skyler.