

Re: Sacrifice

Nobody asked but ...

When you think sacrifice, think goat kids and virgin female humans on altars covered with blood, think innocent tribe members on a Mayan edifice saturated with gore, think about burnings at the stake. ... We are not created to be subordinate to the benefit of another. We are created without regard to benefit. Our purpose in life, should we choose to be purposeful, is to optimize our own individuality, generating consequences that may eventuate in benefit to others. Any ill-chosen assumption of subservience to others or to the causes of the collective are subtractions from your life, specifically, from the lives of your loved ones and friends, in general, and from the lives of your fellow human beings, universally.

Kilgore