

Statism, Morality and Children

Written by The Perturbed Patriot for NoMoreCages.com.

Children will be taught that they cannot steal, kill, rape, damage property or infringe on other people's freedoms, but will also be taught that government not only can, but should do precisely these things to people in the interest of the public good. How convenient is that? In truth, kids will have been royally screwed and stolen from before they were even born, but will be conditioned to believe that this was just, moral and good. It's horrific, and... brilliant. How much more effective is slavery when you teach the slaves from the time they're children that their enslavement is just and moral?

Read the full thing »