

The 'NO' Zone

Editor's Pick. Written by L. R. Knost.

The life of a small child is comprised of a daily onslaught of tempting surfaces begging for the artistry of a crayon, tall places crying out to be scaled, lovely little objects in need of a mouth or nose to visit, and dozens of other alluring glass and liquid and sharp things to be explored through the physics of gravity, the kinetics of concoctions, and the application of Newton's Laws of Motion. There is only one force powerful enough to defeat this nearly irresistible call of adventure, imagination, and discovery... the No!
