

The Unjustice System

Nobody asked but ...

With the news still ringing in my brain that the Federal DOJ is raiding legal marijuana establishments in Colorado (I was not surprised but I still despair), I wonder how rational humans can attach themselves to something called by some name that has justice in its expression, and still perpetrate actions which are the soul of injustice. In a recent Words Poorly Used installment I proposed that our justice system was really a system of sweeping things under the rug, but I am going to ramp that up today. The former was not strong enough. The federal justice system is based entirely on malignant intent to drive its constituency crazy. Have you ever heard the term “gaslighting?” Read, enjoy. The clear but unstated purpose of any federal appendage with “Justice” in its name or mission statement is to suborn the American people by destroying their reason.
