

Declaration of Independence

Nobody asked but ...

If you must declare yourself independent, you are not free. If you were truly independent, from whom are you independent?

You are born free — a fact which is separate from any declaration.

When you are told to wear a mask, whether you do or don't does not establish obedience. If one must get any kind of go-ahead from others, self-reliance is not one's first problem.

I am not going to tell you what I have done for the past year. You don't need to know. I don't need for you to know.

— Kilgore Forelle