

Endings

Nobody asked but ...

All things must come to an end, but it seems the frequency has been on an uptick this past week.

Members of POTUS's cabinet have seen the end of their service (Tillerson), or at least the beginning of the end (McMaster, DeVos).

It is to be hoped, we will see the end of stress testing of spans over live passers-by. See Florida International University.

We saw the ending of a welcome mat for POTUS in the State of California.

A stake was driven into the ground in Donald Trump, Jr.'s marriage this week.

The Ides of March have come and gone, and St.Pat's day is here. Spring break will end for many on Sunday.

The University of Kentucky saw an end of its 30-year streak of basketball games with at least 1 made 3-point field goal.

Standard time yielded to Daylight Saving across most of the land.

Many Russian diplomats watched their tour of duty in England truncate.

Winter will slide off the calendar later this coming week.

Shall we ban parcels, now that package bombs have killed people in Austin, TX?

The first half-century after the My Lai Massacre has passed.

Bi-Lo and Winn-Dixie have come to a fork in the road. And the beat goes on.

— Kilgore Forelle