

Enough Enabling, Already!

Another evil loser killed a bunch of people. This time at a mall and Walmart in El Paso, Texas.

It infuriates me that anti-gun bigots keep making this type of event more likely.

He, or a comparable evil loser, would have free rein at the local mall and Walmart. Because both of those places post “No Guns” signs. The stupid behind this sort of “thinking” astounds me.

I see people ignore the signs and open carry while shopping in the local Walmart. People who are obviously not Blue Line Gang special flowers. Probably unintentionally– New Mexico is an open-carry state, after all. I’ve never seen the Walmart management throw anyone out for ignoring the “We don’t care if you die” signs. But they are there as an invitation to evil losers, regardless. They make the customers and employees much less safe by their presence. If I were rude and didn’t mind drawing attention to them I’d thank them for their service.

The local mall lost some of their “No Guns” signs over the past few years. You can actually walk in some entrances which don’t have the insults posted by them. But one entrance that I know of still has one by it. I don’t go there enough to have noticed whether people ignore that sign– but you know they do.

If anyone ever decides to go on a murder spree, they aren’t going to change their mind because guns are “forbidden” on the property. They’d just be able to murder uninterrupted for longer than they would if someone was shooting back. And all metal detectors at the door would do is cause the evil losers to come in shooting... while the useless alarms blare.

Anti-gun “laws”– “gun control [sic] laws”– KILL. Enough is enough.
