

Equality's Greatest Enemy

Kevin Carson writes about how coercion always creates inequality. And if you didn't already know, the state's very existence depends on and is maintained by coercion. Therefore, the state is naturally an enemy of equality. Remember that before bowing down to the state to ask for its help in bringing about equality. Also remember that it's the free and voluntary market that is equality's greatest ally.