

Foolish Statists

Most of my antics on here are more tailored toward the absolute hypocrisy of the left. They are destroying everything and everyone and deserve every bit of criticism possible.

This post, however, will turn towards criticizing the right, constitutional conservatives, small government libertarians, etc...

Why would anyone be surprised that when the government investigates itself we the people do not hear the truth, insiders are rigging the investigation, and the deep state is never held accountable? This is not a flaw of the people (though they are all evil people), this is a flaw of the system. It is not possible to have a small government because small government begets bigger government always and everywhere. And the bigger the government the more corruption. More corruptions yields more investigation of the government by the government which begets more bigger government.

I say no government - everything must be voluntary.