

Houston, TX (Continued)

Nobody asked but ...

Is citing disasters as a justification for the state kind of ghoulish, or is it just me? Is this a really-in-poor-taste instance of the broken window fallacy? POTUS is there waving a Texas flag, wearing a "USA" ball cap, standing on some sort of riser. Why doesn't he get down and hand out some diapers, bottled water, or food to the embattled inhabitants, instead of grandstanding? He claims, "We want to do it better than ever before." But it looks like the same old pandering BS from here. Maybe they can get Brownie to come back.

— Kilgore Forelle