How to Understand

If you want to understand something, then write about it, talk about it, and share resources about it.

Don't just study things in private. Share and ship things in public.

For any given subject, the best way to learn about it is to challenge yourself to do something about it.

The best preparation is participation.