

I'm THAT Mom

Written by Dayna Martin for her personal blog.

You know, that Mom that takes her children sledding at midnight, under the stars, making the neighbors secretly jealous because they have to sleep to get up early for work and school.

I'm that Mom who loves to clean and decorate and enjoys giving my family a cozy, joyful place to call their nest. I express my creativity using my home as my canvas. I want home to be a place that my children love to be, where they feel safe, happy and inspired in.

I'm that Mom who always assumes positive intent from my children and sees them as fully capable people. I'm that Mom who encourages my children to explore their own beliefs, even when they differ from my own.

Read the full thing »