

Imposing Personal Opinions onto Others

The concept of freedom isn't about other people living their lives the way you live yours. It's about everyone being free to do whatever they wish so long as their actions do not harm other people or deprive them of their stuff. Put another way, you have no right to impose your personal opinions and beliefs about sexuality, drug use, lifestyle choices, body modifications, religion, and so forth onto others.