

Individual

Nobody asked but ...

Individual means a thing indivisible, undividable. No two entities can occupy the same time and space. Every individual thing is unique, if for no other difference than the difference in time and space. If two things did occupy the same time and space, they could not be separate things. They are not they. It is an it.

Kilgore