

Learn How to Shoot Back

Many of the same people who have spent the last year accusing Trump and his supporters of being fascists, staging protests and rallies, shining a spotlight on the problem of sexual assault, and donning headgear resembling genitalia are now calling on that same government to forcibly disarm the population. Think about that for a moment...

I hate the government as much or more than any of these people (albeit for different reasons) and I consider the government's unchecked evil to be one of the most compelling arguments for why the populace should be not just armed, but well armed.

Guns have historically proven very effective against both fascists and rapists, yet those who claim to stand against these evils are now demanding that we be deprived of the only tools we have left to defeat them. I'm forced to conclude that these agitators are either incredibly foolish, entirely disingenuous, or perhaps both. If you really want to stand up against evil, learn how to shoot back and acquire the means to do so.
