

There is No Conflict Between “Left” and “Right”

There is no conflict between “left” and “right” - there is only conflict between personal liberty and different forms of tribal enslavement. There is no conflict between “political correctness” and “political incorrectness” - there is only conflict between dispassionate factuality and different forms of emotional bluster. There is no conflict between religious fanaticism and “secular humanism” - there is only conflict between mature spirituality and different forms of ideological ritualism. And there is no conflict between the individual and society - there is only conflict between individual reason and collective frenzy.