

On Transacceptance

Want to change hair color? Want to change genders? Want to change races? Want to change species? I really don't care. All I care about is: What value can you bring to my life? What can you sell me? What can you offer me? In a world where we aren't forced to relate with or accept those we just don't want to relate with or accept because reasons, that's all that really matters. Offer me something of value and let's trade, or move on with your life. I will do likewise. And that's today's two cents.

Skyler.
