

Please Don't Go

Nobody asked but ...

For the umpteenth time, someone I revere is saying that he or she will leave Facebook. We voluntaryists believe that is one's choice. But for selfish reasons, I hate to see good people go.

Some of the best people are discovered on Facebook. You know who they are.

You have been living your entire life to prepare yourself for today — a day in which Sturgeon's Law applies.

Sturgeon's Law:

Sturgeon's law is the adage that "ninety percent of everything is crap". This suggests that, in general, the vast majority of the works that are produced in any given field are likely to be of low quality.

For instance, being wishful about the quality of social media is vain. But when you find quality don't look a gift horse in the mouth.

Remember, while 90% (or more) may be crap, 10% is not.

— Kilgore Forelle