

Re: Cross-breed Carrots

Parrish, whether or not a cross-breed carrot is mislabeled or not, I'll leave that up to a competitive judiciary to decide. I personally wouldn't think so as I understand the genetics are the same (all dog breeds are DNA-wise still a "dog"). You are correct, however, that many different types of foods would be available for people to choose from in a truly free market. And without legal protections to the contrary, they would all be properly identified.

Skyler.