

Re: If Your Vote Actually Counted

Writes Kyle Bennett:

If you're voting for freedom, you're a permanent minority, by design. It's not just that you're one of only three or four percent for now, until you can grow that number through some kind of heroic effort, it's that the system is designed to make sure no candidate you would choose is even available to vote for in a general election.