

Re: Mother Nature

Nobody asked but ...

Mother Nature's laws are all reducible to principles. They do not need go-betweens. They do not need councils of elders in black robes. They do not need a priesthood. One is free to tinker with these laws, but the consequences are swift and direct. One can vainly substitute artificial legislation, but Nature proceeds anyway.

Kilgore