

Reason is the Enemy of Statism

Most people are content to believe without reason. Instead of reasons, they have a stack of excuses; this is not as good.

They'll simply assert "cops are good guys", but if pressed for reasons for this belief, they have feelings, fears, laziness, and cowardice- which they imagine constitute reasons for their belief. But they'll provide no actual reasons based on reason.

When I say there is no such thing as a "good cop", I can show the reasons and the reasoning behind that reality. Copsuckers probably won't like it, and will counter with their feelings and excuses, but the facts stand.

It's the same on topic after topic.

This is why statists would rather rely on belief, and why they hate facts so desperately. Facts are the archenemy of those seeking to justify statism.