

Since Pearl Harbor

Nobody asked but ...

Deceit, a day of deceit, December Seventh.

Congratulations! We have made it into the history books with 80 consecutive years of official lying about one of the most important turning points in our history.

If the attack on Pearl Harbor was permitted, perhaps to attain a longer term goal, were We the People included in the decision-making? Why wasn't it murder in the first degree, malice of forethought? Did any event of subsequent occurrence justify the slaughter?

If the attack on Pearl Harbor was truly a surprise, why then was it not condemned as a debacle, military and political negligence of the first order?

— Kilgore Forelle