

Social Action and Social Norms

Written by Clayton for The Voluntaryist Reader.

Every acting being has a morality, that is, has preferred ends and acts on those preferences. The ultimate end which lies behind every action is that end which is never a means to any other end – this ultimate end can be called satisfaction, happiness or pleasure.

Read the full thing »