

The State Should Be Abolished

There is no threat which has ever existed in the history of mankind which even approaches the threat posed by the state to the lives, liberty, and property of the individual. For this reason and many others, the state should be abolished, but it should also be exposed—every secret it holds should be revealed, entirely unredacted, for the open review of every human being on the planet.