

The Way Nature Intended

Children are born whole, kind, loving and assuming the best of intentions from others. It is our cultural controlling of children that creates defensiveness, meanness and assuming the worst intentions in others. It is through this conditioned mindset that negativity in one's life is created. When a child is respected and living in partnership with those in his life, his reality and life experience is joyous and positive - the way nature intended life to be!

Quote by Dayna Martin.