

This Just In

Nobody asked but ...

The media are dithering again. They incorrectly interpreted the Donna Brazile story to say that elections had been rigged. Now they are sticking to that incorrect story against a tsunami of contradicting fact. But that's enough of dissecting how the media get it wrong — it's a same old version of the same old story. What sticks with me are these takeaways:

- The infighting among party members, of any party, is fierce and entirely predictable,
- Politics are disgusting, and politicians are bottom-feeders,
- The Democratic (sic) National Committee owed nothing to Bernie Sanders, the sub-not-POTUS,
- The not-POTUS campaign owed nothing to the sub-not-POTUS,
- The sub-not-POTUS is a member of the SOCIALIST party, ie a parasite in the Democrat primary system
- Both major parties are deep in the process of tearing themselves apart
- It would be “good riddance!,” but things, hideous things, will arise from the rotting slime, just in time to ruin again, next cycle, the American Dream.

— Kilgore Forelle