

Thoughts on “Me Too” and Sexual Assault (44m) – Episode 086

Episode 086 welcomes Jessica Burden back to the podcast to chat with Skyler about the “Me too” campaign going around Facebook, designed to increase awareness of the prevalence of sexual harassment and sexual assault. They discuss the ways bad parenting practices create and contribute to these problems, the responsibilities of everybody in not hurting other people, and in protecting themselves, what parents can teach not only their sons, but also their daughters, in preparation for dealing with these problems, and many more related topics.

Listen to Episode 086 (44m, mp3, 64kbps)

Show Notes

Jessica Burden, Facebook Profile

EVC, “Introduction to Peaceful Parenting”

EVC, “Introduction to Radical Unschooling”

Robin Grille, Parenting for a Peaceful World

Robert Sapolsky, Why Zebras Don't Get Ulcers

EMDR.com, “What is EMDR?”

Helen De Cruz, “Alloparenting, attachment and the impossible mother”

Aryssa D., “5 Steps All Women Can Take To Protect Themselves”

PMC Study, “US women’s choices of strategies to protect themselves from violence”

Subscribe

via RSS here.

via iTunes here.

via Stitcher here.

via blubrry here.

via Player.FM here.