

We Offer Them Anarchy

We offer them anarchy, thinking we are offering an orderly society without imposed government and with an opportunity to choose whatever type of governance suits them best — one size or type need not fit all.

They reject anarchy, thinking they are rejecting a world of chaos and violent disorder.

We could attempt to allay this confusion by simply offering them individual freedom, but they have been brainwashed to believe that the extortion and abuse by heavily armed gangs to which they are accustomed is freedom.