

What Kids Really Want Parents to Know

Guest post by Kelly Bartlett.

Over the years, I've been able to decipher a few important lessons from my kids. Sometimes I'm good at figuring out what they are really trying to say with their behavior, other times, it takes me months or years of frustration before I figure out something they're communicating. Here are some important messages, decoded, that I have come to realize my kids—and many kids—want parents to know.

Read the full thing »